THINK "RANSOM FARM" HAD 11 BOY PRISONERS

MAFIA RING HAD SAME NEAR CHICAGO

BILLY RANIERI WAS HELD CAPTIVE THERE 13 DAYS
PAROLED CONVICT MAKES A STATEMENT TO THE AUTHORITIES

Chicago, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Hoffman and Charles J. Mueller today revealed evidence supporting a belief that the "farm" where Billy Ranieri was held captive for 13 days, is prison for at least ten other boys held for ransom by a mafia extortion ring.

Hoffman and Mueller made public the statement of a paroled convict which said that ten boys, whom Billy Ranieri described as "spending their vacations on the farm" in reality were being held for large ransom.

The statement was made by Angelo De Meleo, a paroled convict of Joliet prison, now serving a jail sentence of 41 days in Will county jail for disorderly conduct.

De Meleo, according to Hoffman and Mueller, said that several days before Billy Ranieri was kidnapped he had been asked by two members of an extortion ring to "go in on the Ranieri deal because it would mean a lot of money."

De Meleo named Julian Roman and Pasquale Rocco and said when they made the offer to him they had a small boy in the back of their car.

"They told me the kid was just another kid and that they had ten more at the 'farm,'" De Meleo was quoted as saying.

Billy Ranieri in his story to police upon his release said he had been kept at a farm with several other boys whose "parents were out of town."

Hoffman and Mueller said police had no record of any missing youths who might be held by the extortion ring, but explained that this fact in no way contradicted the story. They cited the fact that parents in the Italian and Sicilian quarters seldom asked police to aid in finding their children, fearing that such a move would result in certain death for the kidnaped child.

SENATOR CURTIS IS CAMPAIGNING IN OKLAHOMA

NEARING CLOSE OF FAR WESTERN CAMPAIGN FOR VICE PRESIDENCY
TO SPEAK AT MIAMI, TULSA AND OKMULGEE TO-DAY

By KENNETH G. CRAWFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Aboard Curtis Car in Oklahoma, Sept. 27.—Senator Charles Curtis left Missouri to his democratic opponent today and pressed on into Oklahoma to finish his far western campaign for the vice presidency.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, democratic nominee for vice president, will speak tonight at Springfield, Mo., in the same auditorium where the republican nominee appealed for support last night.

Between 5,000 and 6,000 persons applauded Curtis' promise of effective farm relief and higher tariff protection, both for agriculture and industry if the republican party is returned to power next November.

They cheered most lustily, however, when he mentioned prohibition, denouncing Governor Alfred Smith's modification proposals.

Curtis is scheduled for three speeches today, the first at Miami before an Indian audience, the second at Tulsa and the third at Okmulgee.

The nominee is still suffering from sore throat contracted last week at Rosebud, S. D.

QUACKERY OF DARK AGES IS BOUND TO ENDURE

St. Paul, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Born in dark ages, medical quackery is still rampant, Dr. Morris Fishbein, Chicago, editor of the American Medical Journal, declared in an address here before a men's club.

"The first American quack, Elisha Perkins, claimed that by the use of electrodes, which cost 25 cents and sold for $5, disease could be drawn from the body," Dr. Fishbein said. "Since Perkins' time thousands of quacks have sprung up and sad to say they flourish."

"Sadder still, quackery will continue to flourish so long as there are suckers to believe in fraudulent claims of modern charlatans and alchemists."

GIVEN ROUSING RECEPTION IN THE TWIN CITIES TODAY

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Paul, Sept. 27.—The "happy warrior," Governor Alfred E. Smith, democratic presidential candidate, arrived in the Twin Cities today in an atmosphere of excitement rarely seen in Minnesota.

Hotels were crowded, streets were thronged, and hundreds of automobiles poured into the city from adjoining states bringing thousands who will attempt to see and hear the New York governor when he speaks at 9 o'clock tonight in the St. Paul auditorium.

The governor's special train arrived outside of Minneapolis early this morning and lay on a siding for several hours while the nominee for the highest office in the nation deservingly rested.

Shortly after 10 A. M. the train was drawn into the city where thousands upon thousands gave Governor Smith and his party a noisy and enthusiastic welcome.

Smith gave his admirers the now well known smile as the party rode through the streets to the Nicollet hotel. There the nominee was met by Minnesota newspaper men and members of the democratic state central committee.

Mrs. Smith and her daughter, Mrs. John A. Warner, were meanwhile fested at the Leamington hotel.

Just after noon the presidential candidate appeared in a parade which swung through the principal streets of the city. The route was lined with a mass of cheering and smiling persons. The scene was reminiscent of the visit of Colonel Lindbergh following his memorable flight to Paris. But today instead of a modest, slightly embarrassed youth, the crowds were greeted by an affable, seasoned campaigner.

Smith doffed his hat, bowed and smiled, and waved repeatedly to the throngs.

This afternoon the New York governor was to be the central figure in another parade, that from Minneapolis across the streets of Midway to St. Paul.

Upwards of 100,000 persons were expected to line the course between the two cities. The journey was scheduled to be made in a half hour but was expected to be made longer so that each person along the line could be given a satisfactory sight of the nominee.

Upon arrival in St. Paul the Smith party was to be quartered in the Hotel Lowry until the time for the governor's appearance and his only Minnesota address.

The auditorium doors were to be thrown open to the public at 6:30 P. M. although the program was not to begin until nearly two hours later.

Hubert H. D'Autremont, chairman of the democratic state central committee, will introduce Mayor L. C. Hodgson, St. Paul, permanent chairman, who was to deliver a brief address, followed perhaps by likewise brief addresses by other prominent democrats.

Governor Smith will begin speaking at 9 P. M. The address is expected to include farm relief, tariff,

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt Given Authority to Campaign for Hoover in Any Way She Pleases

CREATES FURORE IN BOTH PARTIES, ATTACKS SMITH

SAYS GOV. SMITH, INSTEAD OF HERSELF, CREATED TWO ISSUES

HAD INJECTED BOTH RELIGIOUS AND PROHIBITION ISSUES

Chicago, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general, was on her way back to Washington today with full authority from the republican campaign speakers' bureau here to continue her campaign for Herbert Hoover in any way that she pleases.

Although she denied she came here because of the furore in both parties over her attacks upon Governor Alfred E. Smith, democratic presidential candidate, Mrs. Willebrandt appeared unexpectedly in Chicago yesterday and after spending the morning dodging reporters finally consented to be interviewed.

She said that Gov. Smith, instead of herself, had injected both the religious and prohibition issues into the presidential campaign.

Asked "Have you been making your address as a free lance or under the auspices of the speakers' bureau and do you intend to continue making speeches through the country?" Mrs. Willebrandt turned to Congressman Walter H. Newton, head of the speakers' bureau, and said:

"I think I'll ask Mr. Newton to answer that for me."

"Mrs. Willebrandt certainly has been speaking under the auspices of the speakers' bureau of the republican national committee," Newton said. "She has engagements in several states already, including Kentucky and Tennessee during the month of October and if her official duties will permit, she will make more speeches."

Mrs. Willebrandt left for Washington immediately after the interview.

Kansas City, Sept. 27.—Denial that the Anti-Saloon League holds any religious prejudice against Gov. Smith is made in the current issue of the Missouri edition of the American Issue, organ of the league.

"Had the democratic party nominated another Catholic, Sen. Walsh of Montana, the Anti-Saloon League would have endorsed him," an editorial says.

An edition of the American Issue published in Ohio recently urged voters to vote for Herbert Hoover and against Smith if they "believe in Anglo-Saxon Protestant domination."

GIVES WARNING TO PROTESTANT CLERGY

STORY OF SLEEP WALKING AS MURDER DEFENSE

NOT BELIEVED BY JURY CONSIDERING CASE AT DETROIT, MICH.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 27.—(UP)—The story of Chester Kutzlub, 48, that he shot and killed his wife while walking in his sleep was not believed by a jury here, which found him guilty of manslaughter. The jury recommended mercy, however.

Judge Alfred J. Murphy in his charge directed that if the jury believed Kutzlub was asleep when he shot his wife, they should find him not guilty.

Three of Kutzlub's children testified that he was a somnambulist, having walked two or three times a week in his sleep for several years. Dr. Isaac Polozker, psychiatrist at the receiving hospital, testified that it was possible for a somnambulist to commit violent physical acts in such a state.

The jury of four men and eight women reached their verdict after two hours and a half of deliberation.

HOOVER BUSY WITH SPEECH FOR ELIZABETHTON

BETTING EVEN AT HEADQUARTERS HE WILL GO FISHING NEXT WEEK

SPEECH TAKES NO RECOGNITION OF RECENT ATTACKS ON PARTY BY SMITH

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 27.—Herbert Hoover sent the first draft of his Elizabethton speech to the printers today, and betting was even around his headquarters that he would take next week the fishing trip he has delayed for a month.

The speech takes no recognition of recent attacks upon the republican campaign by the democratic candidate, Gov. Smith, in his western tour. It is based on historical incidents in the battle of Kings Mountain, fought near the little Tennessee town where it is to be delivered, and it treats of the necessity for developing the humane side of governments.

The first draft required a week of arduous labor. The nominee now will go over it again. He hopes to conclude it by the end of the week.

In that case, he will try out some of the new fishing tackle presented to him by friends. He may go to Solomon's Island in Chesapeake Bay to board a private yacht for two or three days' angling before he sets out a week from Friday for his brief Elizabethton trip.

Protests have been made that he is making two trips across Virginia, through six important cities, without a single stop during his Elizabethton trip. His traveling through Virginia the nights of Oct. 5 and 6 will be after midnight and he will have no chance to make a personal appearance.

Virginia republicans have urged him to alter his itinerary to give their voters an opportunity to see him.

GIRL OF 13 SLAYS HERSELF

MARIE GILLUM, KANSAS CITY, DISTRACTED BY "GOSSIP AND LIES"

Kansas City, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Distraction by what she termed in a death note as "gossip and lies" caused Marie Gillum, 13, to shoot and kill herself.

The little girl shot herself with a revolver late yesterday and died in a hospital today. Her mother worked afternoons and evenings and the child told police officers who took her to the hospital that reports of her spending time out of school with boys was not true.

"I ain't worth living," said a note found in her bedroom. "Nobody likes me anymore. I just want to be buried any place. I am going to shoot myself."

MATCH 'EXPLODES,' FIRES COAL OIL CAN, STARTS BLAZE

Muskogee, Okla., Sept. 27.—(UP)—John Coffey, farmer, attempted to light his pipe. The match "exploded," a nearby coal oil can caught fire, blazing oil fell on a cat close by, and the cat ran into the Coffey barn, which was burned to the ground.

The cat also was destroyed.

SAYS RASKOB ASSERTED IT WAS AN "AFFLICTION"

"GOV. SMITH IS AGAINST AMENDMENT BUT WILL ENFORCE ALL LAWS"

"WHAT KIND OF AN ATTORNEY GENERAL WOULD THESE TWO SELECT?"

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 27.—(UP)—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho continued his campaign for the republican national ticket here last night in convention hall.

The Idaho senator referred to the eighteenth amendment as the democrats' "one definite issue," and directed a satirical attack against Governor Alfred E. Smith's modification proposals.

"John Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, says the eighteenth amendment is a 'damnable affliction,'" Borah declared. "Governor Smith says he's against the eighteenth amendment but will enforce all laws. Now how can these two get together to select an attorney general, United States marshals and prohibition officials who will enforce his 'damnable affliction'?"

Borah demanded continuation of the present immigration laws and launched into a denunciation of Tammany hall in connection with dry law enforcement.

Owatonna, Sept. 27.—Retention of the eighteenth amendment and enforcement of the Volstead act were demanded in resolutions adopted by the Winona Presbytery during the organization's annual assembly.

The Presbytery pledged its support to any effort at modification of the dry laws.

The Rev. A. R. Lynn, Rochester, was chosen moderator of the group for the coming year and Chatfield was named 1929 convention city.

MANY PERSONS INJURED, VOLUNTEER WORKERS SEEK THEIR JOBS

OFFICERS OF GERMAN VESSEL DEFEND SHIP FROM BEING BOARDED

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Many persons were injured today in fights between striking stevedores and volunteer workers who have taken their jobs.

Officers of the German steamer Hanau defended the vessel with revolvers and clubs to prevent strikers from boarding it.

Adelaide, Australia, Sept. 27.—Twelve persons were injured, some seriously, during rioting on the waterfront today.

Two thousand union workers who have been on strike for several weeks in protest against a government decision respecting working hours, marched on the free labor bureau.

Volunteers waiting to take the place of the strikers were beaten. The strikers then marched on three overseas vessels which were being loaded by volunteers and began bombarding the workers with stones and coal. Several were injured.

Several volunteer workers were thrown into the water and wool awaiting shipment was dumped in after them.

Police were outnumbered by the strikers and were powerless to stop them.

UNTEER WORKERS SEEK THEIR JOBS

OFFICERS OF GERMAN VESSEL
DEFEND SHIP FROM BEING BOARDED

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Many persons were injured today in fights between striking stevedores and volunteer workers who have taken their jobs.

Officers of the German steamer Hanau defended the vessel with revolvers and clubs to prevent strikers from boarding it.

Adelaide, Australia, Sept. 27.—Twelve persons were injured, some seriously, during rioting on the waterfront today.

Two thousand union workers who have been on strike for several weeks in protest against a government decision respecting working hours, marched on the free labor bureau. Volunteers waiting to take the place of the strikers were beaten.

The strikers then marched on three overseas vessels which were being loaded by volunteers and began bombarding the workers with stones and coal. Several were injured.

Several volunteer workers were thrown into the water and wool awaiting shipment was dumped in after them.

Police were outnumbered by the strikers and were powerless to stop them.

PIRATE PARTY OPENS TO THOUSANDS TODAY

Day Resembles Holiday as Treasure Seekers in Holiday Mood Visit Stores

NEW PRIZES OFFERED

Merchants Testify as to Success of Occasion; Mammoth Party Closes Saturday

Housewives, men employed on night shifts, young men and ladies declared a holiday today to participate in the opening of the Pirate Party. Holiday mood prevailed as the crowds swelled with the afternoon to thousands as the people formed a pilgrimage to the eight business establishments downtown where special prizes and bargains attracted them.

All through the downtown streets it was the same. People carried their Pirate Section of the Brainerd Daily Dispatch of yesterday's edition in their hands, under their arms, and amid purchases in their shopping bags. All had definite objects in mind, all hoping that they might be among the hundred or more to receive valuable prizes being given away.

Exclamations of joy were heard as winning numbers on pirate cards were spotted. A dozen new prizes to those listed yesterday have been added today in the various stores.

It served a double purpose. Merchandise attractively arrayed in the various business establishments also brought to mind to the treasure seekers the many necessities required in clothing, household necessity, household articles and jewelry.

People are reminded today again to be sure to have their Pirate Section of the paper with them. Have the complete section and present it to any in charge at any of the business establishments where winning numbers are discovered.

The name of the party claiming the gift will be entered upon the card and the merchants will be pleased to deliver the gift at the close of the party Saturday evening or Monday.

Statements given the Dispatch at 2:30 p. m. today by members of the firms participating show that the Pirate Party is meeting with great success.

Testimonials given follow:
Amos J. Maghan, of the Alderman-Maghan Co., hardware—"The Pirate Party is going over big in all departments. Some 350 people visited the store up to 2:30 p. m. Two prizes were claimed up to that time, one man winning a floor lamp and a woman a teapot. We are very much pleased with the turnout.

Art Turcotte, of The Fairway Store—"The attendance is coming all fine. We find that the people are keenly interested. The complete success of the Pirate Party is assured."

R. H. Coveyow, watchmaker and jeweler—"Hundreds of new people have entered my store today and have complimented me upon the neat appearance of my store. I am well satisfied with the Pirate Party sales and attendance."

John M. Bye of the Bye Clothing Co.: "The Pirate Party is creating much good will and bringing in many new friends reviewing the store in all departments. No prizes had been claimed up to 2:30 o'clock so a good opportunity awaits the treasure seekers here."

S. Lundborg, jeweler: "I have had more visitors today than during any previous day since I entered business. All showed interest in the prizes and goods displayed. A nice large clock was claimed by a city resident and a lady from the rural district claimed a wrist watch."

O. A. Peterson, of the Peterson Clothing Co.: "We are perfectly satisfied as to the hundreds of people brought to the store. The largest number of visitors this morning were women. We expect many rural people in tomorrow and the men in the evening."

S. Newman of the Patek Furniture Co.: "I find the party to be a very enjoyable event and received visits from between 300 and 400 people up until 2 o'clock. It gave me pleasure when a lady from the northside claimed a nice occasional chair about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. It has kept us very busy."

Albert O. Anderson, of the Brainerd Daily Dispatch: "The Pirate Party is realizing the results we anticipated. We are pleased to have received the many numerous favorable reports from the merchants participating and those taking part in the treasure hunt. One southside lady expressed her pleasure this morning by claiming a six months free subscription to the paper."

Miss Islay McCall has returned from Winnipeg where she has been for a few months.

PIRATE PARTY OPENS TO THOUSANDS TODAY

Day Resembles Holiday as Treasure
Seekers in Holiday Mood
Visit Stores

NEW PRIZES OFFERED

Merchants Testify as to Success of Occasion; Mammoth Party
Closes Saturday

Housewives, men employed on night shifts, young men and ladies declared a holiday today to participate in the opening of the Pirate Party. Holiday mood prevailed as the afternoon to thousands as the people formed a pilgrimage to the eight business establishments downtown where special prizes and bargains awaited them.

All through the downtown streets it was the same. People carried their Pirate Section of the Brainerd Daily Dispatch of yesterday's edition in their hands, under their arms, and amid purchases in their shopping bags. All had definite objects in mind, all hoping that they might be among the hundred or more to receive valuable prizes being given away.

Exclamations of joy were heard as winning numbers on pirate cards were spotted. A dozen new prizes to those listed yesterday have been added today in the various stores.

It served a double purpose. Merchandise attractively arrayed in the various business establishments also brought to mind to the treasure seekers the many necessities required in clothing, household necessity, household articles and jewelry.

People are reminded today again to be sure to have their Pirate Section of the paper with them. Have the complete section and present it to any in charge at any of the business establishments where winning numbers are discovered.

The name of the party claiming the gift will be entered upon the card and the merchants will be pleased to deliver the gift at the close of the party Saturday evening or Monday.

Statements given the Dispatch at 2:30 p. m. today by members of the firms participating show that the Pirate Party is meeting with great success.

Testimonials given follow:
Amos J. Maghan, of the Alderman-Maghan Co., hardware—"The Pirate Party is going over big in all departments. Some 350 people visited the store up to 2:30 p. m. Two prizes were claimed up to that time, one man winning a floor lamp and a woman a teapot. We are very much pleased with the turnout.

Art Turcotte, of The Fairway Store—"The attendance is coming all fine. We find that the people are keenly interested. The complete success of the Pirate Party is assured."

R. H. Coveyow, watchmaker and jeweler—"Hundreds of new people have entered my store today and have complimented me upon the neat appearance of my store. I am well satisfied with the Pirate Party sales and attendance."

John M. Bye of the Bye Clothing Co.: "The Pirate Party is creating much good will and bringing in many new friends reviewing the store in all departments. No prizes had been claimed up to 2:30 o'clock so a good opportunity awaits the treasure seekers here."

S. Lundborg, jeweler: "I have had more visitors today than during any previous day since I entered business. All showed interest in the prizes and goods displayed. A nice large clock was claimed by a city resident and a lady from the rural district claimed a wrist watch."

O. A. Peterson, of the Peterson Clothing Co.: "We are perfectly satisfied as to the hundreds of people brought to the store. The largest number of visitors this morning were women. We expect many rural people in tomorrow and the men in the evening."

S. Newman of the Patek Furniture Co.: "I find the party to be a very enjoyable event and received visits from between 300 and 400 people up until 2 o'clock. It gave me pleasure when a lady from the northside claimed a nice occasional chair about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. It has kept us very busy."

HELP THE DISABLED MEN TO HELP THEMSELVES

In the Meuse-Argonne Forest, ten years ago, the last big decisive "push" of the World War was fought and won by the Allies. On Argonne Day, Saturday, September 29th, the Disabled American Veterans of the World War will enlist the aid of the general public in waging the battle for justice still being fought by thousands of unfortunate disabled veterans whose claims for government treatment and compensation have been denied because of the deficiencies of the law or of the evidence submitted by them.

On that day Forget-Me-Nots made by needy and disabled veterans at the American Legion Auxiliary poppy shop at Minneapolis will be offered for sale in every large town and city throughout the state of Minnesota, as well as throughout the nation, to a grateful people who have not yet forgotten their war-time promises that nothing would be too good for the returned soldiers.

In Brainerd the sale of Forget-Me-Nots will be in charge of Mrs. A. C. Mraz as chairman, with Mrs. Jack Aiton acting as assistant chairman, and with girls and women from the American Legion assisting her in offering every person in Brainerd to help the living disabled by wearing a Forget-Me-Not on that day.

"Only the generosity of those who honor the dead by remembering the living is to determine the price of each Forget-Me-Not," said Mrs. Mraz, the local Forget-Me-Not Chairman. "I believe it would be absurd to attempt to name a price, for the person who can afford a dime is just as much entitled to wear the Forget-Me-Not as one who is willing to give a ten dollar bill. I hope that the citizens of this community will show these disabled men by their generosity that they have not forgotten, and will thereby enable them to carry on their wonderful work of aiding unfortunate needy and disabled veterans who would otherwise become a burden upon their relatives or their local community. By assisting disabled men to help themselves we also help our own community and convert a community liability into a community asset. Help us to help the disabled men to help themselves."

AMUNDSEN AND NOBILE

COMPARISONS are odious; we beg leave to draw one between Roald Amundsen and Umberto Nobile, says the St. Louis Post Dispatch. These two men embarked on a polar flight last year, Nobile with no Arctic experience, Amundsen with long years of familiarity with that desolate region. Nobile, whose job is to advertise Mussolini and Fascism, proceeded to claim credit for the flight in the name of Italy. It was an ugly epilogue to a fine adventure.

This year we saw Nobile again advancing the glory of Fascism in an Arctic expedition which, with only one Arctic season to guide him, he undertook to direct himself. The expedition had disastrous results. Part of the crew, including the commander, managed to land on an ice floe. An airplane, making a spectacular descent, reached the floe. It had room for one passenger. Nobile, of course, as the leader of the expedition, because the passenger.

Somewhere in the Arctic wastes is Amundsen—or his dead body. Learning of the plight of his whilom comrade, he undertook a relief expedition. Hopping off from Norway, Amundsen has never been seen since. The chances are he has perished—perished in an effort to save Nobile, who is snugly housed at Kings Bay. No one doubts the courage of Nobile, but there is a generous heroism in Amundsen's adventure which commands universal admiration.

SCHOOL SPIRIT COUNTS

THERE was food for thought in the talk given by Superintendent of Schools E. O. Perkins of Crosby-Ironton high school at the Rotary club.

The range high school, said Mr. Perkins, has many material advantages, but in spite of good building, equipment, instruction, etc., it came out second best with Brainerd in several basketball tilts. It is the school spirit that counts in the final analysis.

There are in all our schools today the boys and girls who will be the leaders in the real game of life. Most of us may have to sit on the sidelines, while a few are performing on the field.

"We in our schools attempt to train these boys and girls for their life work. There are two aims and perhaps three in education, the social, civic and moral aim.

"Proper school athletics takes the individual's leisure time and converts it into something worth while. We in our daily contacts of life are dependent one upon another. It is by concentrating in the game that we find the object in education. The biggest thing in athletics is training for the life to come," said the speaker in conclusion.

A STRANGE INCONSISTENCY

"HERE is a strange inconsistency," says the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

"Some of the people of Minnesota are constantly demanding better trunk highways. At the same time many of these people are advocating the adoption of Amendment No. 1 which would place one-third of the returns from the gasoline tax in the state road and bridge fund. Through that fund this money is to be parceled out to county and township roads.

To divert one-third of the gasoline tax will accomplish nothing in the construction and maintenance of 88,121 miles of county and township roads. The gold and silver will simply disappear in the mire."

The Dispatch believes in doing one thing at a time. Build our trunk lines first and maintain them properly. Then the feeder system can be taken up by the state, if necessary.

A CROOKSTON club of young married men has been founded on the principle that "it is the duty of the woman to accede to the mandates of the man." This may hold good until election time or when the Lady of the House surveys the family budget and tells who is to put up the storm windows, etc.

A PARTY of big league baseball players are planning to start for the New Brunswick moose country for another big hunting expedition. They intend to assemble immediately after the baseball season. Joe Bush, Bob Shawkey, Eddie Collins and several others have completed preparations.

WILL ROGERS says Coolidge made the least speeches of any candidate and gained the largest vote. Bryan made the most speeches and gained the least votes.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1928

HELP THE DISABLED MEN TO HELP THEMSELVES

In the Meuse-Argonne Forest, ten years ago, the last big decisive "push" of the World War was fought and won by the Allies. On Argonne Day, Saturday, September 29th, the Disabled American Veterans of the World War will enlist the aid of the general public in waging the battle for justice still being fought by thousands of unfortunate disabled veterans whose claims for government treatment and compensation have been denied because of the deficiencies of the law or of the evidence submitted by them.

On that day Forget-Me-Nots made by needy and disabled veterans at the American Legion Auxiliary poppy shop at Minneapolis will be offered for sale in every large town and city throughout the state of Minnesota, as well as throughout the nation, to a grateful people who have not yet forgotten their war-time promises that nothing would be too good for the returned soldiers.

In Brainerd the sale of Forget-Me-Nots will be in charge of Mrs. A. C. Mraz as chairman, with Mrs. Jack Aiton acting as assistant chairman, and with girls and women from the American Legion assisting her in offering every person in Brainerd to help the living disabled by wearing a Forget-Me-Not on that day.

"Only the generosity of those who honor the dead by remembering the living is to determine the price of each Forget-Me-Not," said Mrs. Mraz, the local Forget-Me-Not Chairman. "I believe it would be absurd to attempt to name a price, for the person who can afford a dime is just as much entitled to wear the Forget-Me-Not as one who is willing to give a ten dollar bill. I hope that the citizens of this community will show these disabled men by their generosity that they have not forgotten, and will thereby enable them to carry on their wonderful work of aiding unfortunate needy and disabled veterans who would otherwise become a burden upon their relatives or their local community. By assisting disabled men to help themselves we also help our own community and convert a community liability into a community asset. Help us to help the disabled men to help themselves."

AMUNDSEN AND NOBILE

COMPARISONS are odious; we beg leave to draw one between Roald Amundsen and Umberto Nobile, says the St. Louis Post Dispatch. These two men embarked on a polar flight last year, Nobile with no Arctic experience, Amundsen with long years of familiarity with that desolate region. Nobile, whose job is to advertise Mussolini and Fascism, proceeded to claim credit for the flight in the name of Italy. It was an ugly epilogue to a fine adventure.

This year we saw Nobile again advancing the glory of Fascism in an Arctic expedition which, with only one Arctic season to guide him, he undertook to direct himself. The expedition had disastrous results. Part of the crew, including the commander, managed to land on an ice floe. An airplane, making a spectacular descent, reached the floe. It had room for one passenger. Nobile, of course, as the leader of the expedition, because the passenger.

Somewhere in the Arctic wastes is Amundsen—or his dead body. Learning of the plight of his whilom comrade, he undertook a relief expedition. Hopping off from Norway, Amundsen has never been seen since. The chances are he has perished—perished in an effort to save Nobile, who is snugly housed at Kings Bay. No one doubts the courage of Nobile, but there is a generous heroism in Amundsen's adventure which commands universal admiration.

SCHOOL SPIRIT COUNTS

THERE was food for thought in the talk given by Superintendent of Schools E. O. Perkins of Crosby-Ironton high school at the Rotary club.

The range high school, said Mr. Perkins, has many material advantages, but in spite of good building, equipment, instruction, etc., it came out second best with Brainerd in several basketball tilts. It is the school spirit that counts in the final analysis.

There are in all our schools today the boys and girls who will be the leaders in the real game of life. Most of us may have to sit on the sidelines, while a few are performing on the field.

"We in our schools attempt to train these boys and girls for their life work. There are two aims and perhaps three in education, the social, civic and moral aim.

"Proper school athletics takes the individual's leisure time and converts it into something worth while. We in our daily contacts of life are dependent one upon another. It is by concentrating in the game that we find the object in education. The biggest thing in athletics is training for the life to come," said the speaker in conclusion.

A STRANGE INCONSISTENCY

"HERE is a strange inconsistency," says the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

"Some of the people of Minnesota are constantly demanding better trunk highways. At the same time many of these people are advocating the adoption of Amendment No. 1 which would place one-third of the returns from the gasoline tax in the state road and bridge fund. Through that fund this money is to be parceled out to county and township roads.

To divert one-third of the gasoline tax will accomplish nothing in the construction and maintenance of 88,121 miles of county and township roads. The gold and silver will simply disappear in the mire."

The Dispatch believes in doing one thing at a time. Build our trunk lines first and maintain them properly. Then the feeder system can be taken up by the state, if necessary.

A CROOKSTON club of young married men has been founded on the principle that "it is the duty of the woman to accede to the mandates of the man." This may hold good until election time or when the Lady of the House surveys the family budget and tells who is to put up the storm windows, etc.

A PARTY of big league baseball players are planning to start for the New Brunswick moose country for another big hunting expedition. They intend to assemble immediately after the baseball season. Joe Bush, Bob Shawkey, Eddie Collins and several others have completed preparations.

WILL ROGERS says Coolidge made the least speeches of any candidate and gained the largest vote. Bryan made the most speeches and gained the least votes.

N. Y. YANKEES SEEK TO CLINCH AMERICAN LEAGUE FLAG

CLIMACTIC DAY OF 1928 SEASON HAS ARRIVED

YANKEES WILL GRAB THE PENNANT

N. Y. GIANTS HAVE CHANCE TO
MOVE UP INTO FIRST PLACE

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Sept. 27.—One of the climactic days of the 1928 major league season has arrived.

The New York Yankees can clinch the American League pennant this afternoon, if things break right for them.

The New York Giants can move up into first place—whether or not they share it with the St. Louis Cardinals—in the National League race.

For every fan in the far-flung realm of baseball, whether he perches breathless back of third base or listens in at the radio in some cross roads grocery store, today's ball games are fraught with meaning.

Here are just a few of the day's possibilities:

If the Yankees defeat the Detroit Tigers in both games of a double-header at Navin Field, and if the Philadelphia Athletics lose to the Chicago White Sox, the American League race will be over. The world champions will have clinched the pennant, mathematically and definitely.

The standing of the two American League flag contenders is:

				Games to Play
	W.	L.	Pct.
New York	97	52	.651	5
Philadelphia	95	54	.638	4

In the event of the Yankees taking two at Detroit and the Mackmen dropping a game at Chicago, nothing that could happen from then on would keep New York out of the world series.

Even if Miller Huggins' club should then proceed to lose all its remaining games and the Athletics to win all theirs, the final standing next week would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
New York	99	55	.643
Philadelphia	98	55	.641

At any rate, the American League race virtually is over, but what of the contest for the National League championship?

The St. Louis Cardinals now lead the New York Giants by the far from ineradicable margin of two percentage points, or half a game. There will be a double-header between the Giants and the Chicago Cubs at the Polo Grounds, and if New York wins both games, the two contenders will be tied even if the Cardinals win their game with the Boston Braves.

A double defeat for the Giants while the Cards were winning, on the other hand, would put New York virtually out of the running.

All in all, this is no day at all for a baseball fan with a weak heart.

INDIANS SEEK TO INCREASE 1-GAME LEAD

INDIANAPOLIS DEFEATED ROCHESTER, 3 TO 2, IN 11 INNINGS

SWETONIC GAVE 13 HITS IN THE FIRST GAME OF LITTLE WORLD'S SERIES

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(UP)—Having sent Swetonic, his best pitcher, against the Rochester Red Wings yesterday, Manager Bruno Betzel of the Indianapolis Indians was out today to increase the one-game lead that his team holds in the little world series.

Indianapolis, champions of the American Association, defeated the Red Wings yesterday, 3 to 2, in 11 innings. Swetonic gave 13 hits, but it was not until the eighth inning that Rochester could push across a run.

The Indians got only nine hits off Keen, but a rally in the eleventh inning, aided by two walks, gave them the game.

Manager Billy Southworth of the International League champions, got three hits in six times at bat yesterday.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Today's "little world series" game between Rochester of the International League and Indianapolis of the American Association was called off because of rain and cold weather. The teams will meet Friday.

CARDS OPEN 3-GAME SERIES
AGAINST BOSTON
BRAVES

Braves Filed, Boston, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Heartened by word that the Giants had lost the first game to Chicago, the St. Louis Cardinals opened a three-game series against the Braves here this afternoon, scoring six runs in the first inning. The skies were overcast and the attendance small.

The line-ups:
BOSTON—Richbourg, rf; L. Smith, lf; Sisler, 1b; Hornsby, 2b; Mueller, 3b; Farrell, ss; Taylor, c; Brandt, p.
ST. LOUIS—Douthitt, cf; High, 3b; Bottomley, 1b; Hafez, lf; Holm, rf; Wilson, c; Maranville, ss; Haines, p.
Umpires—Hordan and Quigley.
Attendance—2,000.

The Cardinals got away to a six-run lead in the first inning, knocking Brandt from the box. Brandt was replaced by Cooney.

Bottomley's double drove in Douthitt and Frisch. Bottomley scored when Hafez singled to right. Holm singled to right, sending Hafez to third. Then Maranville was passed, filling the bases. Haines crashed out a double, scoring Hafez, Holm and Maranville.

Hornsby drove in a Boston run in the first with a long sacrifice fly, scoring Richbourg.

The Braves scored twice in the second when Bell, who singled, and Taylor, who walked, were driven in by Richbourg's single.

The Cards got two runs in the fifth when Bottomley walked and came home on Hafez's single. The latter scored when Taylor, Braves' catcher, missed the throw-in of Holm's single.

TO ORGANIZE TEN PIN LEAGUES AT MEETING FRIDAY

ENTRIES ALREADY IN FROM 16
TEAMS; HANDICAP, STRAIGHT-
AWAY LEAGUES PROPOSED

A SPECIAL BOWLING CONTEST
OVER WEEK-END; ROLLERS
CHALK UP BIG SCORES

There is to be a meeting of the bowlers of the city Friday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of organizing leagues for the coming season.

Entries are already in from sixteen teams and more will enter at the meeting.

It has been suggested that two leagues be formed, one a straight away and the other a handicap. The straight away league will be composed of bowlers who averaged 160 or better last season.

The handicap league will have bowlers of any and all averages. Scratch will probably be figured at 170 with low at 150, making a handicap limit of 20 pins to the man.

All bowlers, as well as captains and managers are urged to be at the alleys at 8 o'clock for this meeting.

Two prizes are to be given for high single game and high three game total for the three day period, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Some of the boys have been warming up and showing mid-season form, Hagberg getting a 625 total in three games this week.

Kenney, Engbretson, Ziebell, Hulett, Christianson, Peters and others shooting some big 200 scores.

GIANTS IN A DOUBLE-HEADER WITH THE CUBS

McGraw Names Carl Hubbell,
Texas Southpaw, to Start
First Game

ARTIE NEHF, FORMER GIANT
FOR CHICAGO

Polo Grounds, New York, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Artie Nehf, former New York favorite, came back to the Polo Grounds today to deal a death blow to the Giants' pennant hopes by pitching the Chicago Cubs to a 3 to 2 victory over John McGraw's fighting ball club in the first game of a double-header.

Nehf, rescued from the minor leagues last season by the Cubs, pitched a masterpiece. He allowed only six hits, and set the Giants down in order in five innings.

The defeat left the Giants one game behind the Cardinals with four games left to play.

Riggs Stephenson, the former Alabama football star, drove in the winning run, in the fourth inning. Hack Wilson tripled to right and came home on Stephenson's single over second.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
Polo Grounds, New York, Sept. 27.—John McGraw's fighting New York Giants staked their pennant chances in the National League race on today's double-header with the Chicago Cubs.

With one defeat likely to ruin the Giants, McGraw named Carl Hubbell, the raw-boned young Texas southpaw, to start the first game.

Artie Nehf, former Giant left-hander, opposed him. The weather was warm. About 25,000 fans were in the stands when the first game started.

The line-ups:
GIANTS—Welsh, cf; Reese, lf; Mann, rf; Lindstrom, 3b; Hogan, c; Jackson, ss; Terry, 1b; Cohen, 2b; Hubbell, p.

CHICAGO—English, ss; Maguire, 2b; Cuyler, rf; Wilson, cf; Stephenson, lf; Grimm, 1b; Hartnett, c; Beck, 3b; Nehf, p.

Umpires—Klem, Moran and McCormick.

The Giants took the lead in the second, after both teams went out in order in the first and Hubbell had set the Cubs down in their half.

The combination of a double by Lindstrom and a single by Hogan drove in a New York run, after which Nehf steadied and retired the side.

The Cubs forged ahead in their half of the third. Hartnett singled to center, Beck singled to left and Nehf walked, filling the bases. English roled to Jackson, who stepped on second, forcing Nehf. Hartnett scored on the force out and Beck came home when Terry let Jackson's throw on an attempted double play get away from him, the Cubs taking the lead, 2 to 1.

Hack Wilson's long triple to left center and Stephenson's single over second gave the Cubs another run in the fourth.

After one was down in the sixth, Wilson got a single over Lindstrom's head, but a lightning double play stopped the Cubs. Stephenson hit a slow roller to Jackson, who tossed to Cohen, forcing Wilson, Cohen completing the play to Terry.

Andy Cohen drove home a run for the Giants in the fifth. Jackson walked to start the inning. Terry fled to Stephenson, but Cohen bounced a double off the left field wall, sending Jackson home.

The Cubs halted what looked like a dangerous rally in the Giants' half of the sixth. Reese, first up, singled past English and went to third on Mann's double to right. Lindstrom fouled to Beck. Hogan hit a bouncer to Nehf and Reese was run down in a chase between third and home.

Hartnett interfered with Reese, apparently holding him, and allowing Beck to touch him just as he started to dive for the plate.

The Giants gathered around Umpire Klem to protest, but he ruled Reese out. Jackson forced Hogan, Maguire to English.

The Cubs went out in order in their half of the seventh.

The Giants again got the first man on in the seventh, but a double play halted them. Terry's liner to Maguire went for a single when the Cubs' second baseman dropped the ball after a leap. Cohen fled to Cuyler, and Cummings, batting for Hubbell, hit into a double play, English to Maguire to Grimm.

Attendance, 19,000.
The Tigers tied the score in their half of the first when Gehring doubled and scored on Heilmann's single.
The Yanks got another in the third on a walk, a single and a sacrifice fly by Gehrig, scoring Combs.

CORBETT IS OUT-SLUGGED BY SOLDIER

CORBETT NEARLY STARTED RIOT
BY STRIKING BAKER AFTER
BELL IN 2ND ROUND

BAKER WINS 6 ROUNDS, COR-BETT 4 AND 2 DECLARED
EVEN

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 27.—After years of waiting, Sergeant Sammy Baker today is almost within reach of a welterweight title bout.

The Mitchell Field aviator reversed a decision suffered at the hands of Young Corbett, Third, two weeks ago, by taking a 12-round decision from the California southpaw last night at Ebbets Field.

Baker's victory vindicated the New York state athletic commission's judgment in demanding that the winner of the coming welterweight championship bout between Joe Dundee, the titleholder, and "Black Jack" Thompson, San Francisco negro, at Madison Square Garden, Nov. 16, meet Baker within 60 days after their title bout.

Corbett was outgamed, outslugged and outboxed by Baker. He almost precipitated a riot by hitting the little soldier after the bell for the end of the second round.

As Baker turned to go to his corner, Corbett let fly both fists and knocked him down. Baker's seconds had trouble bringing him to between rounds. Baker was in a bad way for half the round, but weathered the attack and then shot a murderous right to Corbett's jaw, flooring the Californian. Corbett ran away from Baker the rest of the round.

Again in the sixth round Baker had Corbett almost out, driving him around the ring with a two-fisted offensive that had the crowd of 7,000 in an uproar. A right to the jaw during this round sent Corbett careening along the ropes.

Corbett started a desperate attack in the twelfth round and had Baker wobble for a few seconds, but the little soldier stopped Corbett with a terrific right to the jaw.

Baker won six rounds, Corbett four and two were even.

THE ALGERIAN ARAB, WHO WON TH' OLYMPIC MARATHON, HAS TURNED PRO AN' IS UNDER CONTRACT TO RUN MATCH RACES FOR TEX RICKARD.

By QUIN HALL
EVERY so often the sport fans in the United States are confronted with problems that demand some serious thinking.
Right now is one of those times and the problem concerns El Ouafi, the Riff from Morocco, who won the marathon at the Olympic games in Amsterdam.
Tex Rickard, the boxing king of New York, is as much responsible for the problem which confronts the fans as anyone. Instead of letting El Ouafi win the marathon and return to his duties as an army dispatch runner, or as a mechanic in the Renault factory, and become merely a vague memory, Tex had to get busy and as a consequence El Ouafi is going to be in our midst for some time. And come to think of it, he is also going to visit Mexico and Canada, and he may be just as big a problem to those neighboring countries as he is here.

The main problem, if you haven't already guessed, centers about the pronunciation of his name. We have our own guess about this, but we may be wrong and unless and until Rickard sends out words of wisdom clarifying the situation it still looks like a man-sized problem.
Anyway, El Ouafi—and your guess is as good as the next one—has signed with Rickard for marathon appearances throughout the United States, Mexico and Canada. The contract guarantees the Riff marathoner $10,000 and that is probably more money than the undersized Algerian Arab could amass in a lifetime of army dispatch running.

El Ouafi's spurt at the finish of the Olympic marathon is now a matter of history. He only succeeded in beating Plaza, from Chile, by a distance of about a hundred yards. This was the race in which our own Joie Ray finished fifth, back of Martellin, a Finn, and Yamada, a Jap.
Tex Rickard's anxiety to drag El Ouafi into some really big U. S. money is sure to turn some of our own distance runners into professionals. Already it is reported that Joie Ray is going to give up the amateur racket and go in for the coin.
His decision to turn pro brings to a close a record of eighteen years of competition as an amateur. This is not the first time that Hestey Joie has decided to become a professional as he turned in his amateur card some years ago with an announcement that he was going to give up amateur racing. After a period of suspension, however, he returned to the track and this year he took up

N. Y. YANKEES SEEK TO CLINCH AMERICAN LEAGUE FLAG

IF THINGS BREAK RIGHT, THE YANKEES WILL GRAB THE PENNANT

N. Y. GIANTS HAVE CHANCE TO
MOVE UP INTO FIRST PLACE

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Sept. 27.—One of the climactic days of the 1928 major league season has arrived.

The New York Yankees can clinch the American League pennant this afternoon, if things break right for them.

The New York Giants can move up into first place—whether or not they share it with the St. Louis Cardinals—in the National League race.

For every fan in the far-flung realm of baseball, whether he perches breathless back of third base or listens in at the radio in some cross roads grocery store, today's ball games are fraught with meaning.

Here are just a few of the day's possibilities:

If the Yankees defeat the Detroit Tigers in both games of a double-header at Navin Field, and if the Philadelphia Athletics lose to the Chicago White Sox, the American League race will be over. The world champions will have clinched the pennant, mathematically and definitely.

The standing of the two American League flag contenders is:

				Games to Play
	W.	L.	Pct.
New York	97	52	.651	5
Philadelphia	95	54	.638	4

In the event of the Yankees taking two at Detroit and the Macknens dropping a game at Chicago, nothing that could happen from then on would keep New York out of the world series.

Even if Miller Huggins' club should then proceed to lose all its remaining games and the Athletics to win all theirs, the final standing next week would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
New York	99	55	.643
Philadelphia	98	55	.641

At any rate, the American League race virtually is over, but what of the contest for the National League championship?

The St. Louis Cardinals now lead the New York Giants by the far from ineradicable margin of two percentage points, or half a game. There will be a double-header between the Giants and the Chicago Cubs at the Polo Grounds, and if New York wins both games, the two contenders will be tied even if the Cardinals win their game with the Boston Braves. A double defeat for the Giants while the Cards were winning, on the other hand, would put New York virtually out of the running.

All in all, this is no day at all for a baseball fan with a weak heart.

INDIANS SEEK TO INCREASE 1-GAME LEAD

INDIANAPOLIS DEFEATED ROCHESTER, 3 TO 2, IN 11 INNINGS

SWETONIC GAVE 13 HITS IN THE FIRST GAME OF LITTLE WORLD'S SERIES

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(UP)—Having sent Swetonic, his best pitcher, against the Rochester Red Wings yesterday, Manager Bruno Betzel of the Indianapolis Indians was out today to increase the one-game lead that his team holds in the little world series.

Indianapolis, champions of the American Association, defeated the Red Wings yesterday, 3 to 2, in 11 innings. Swetonic gave 13 hits, but it was not until the eighth inning that Rochester could push across a run.

The Indians got only nine hits off Keen, but a rally in the eleventh inning, aided by two walks, gave them the game.

Manager Billy Southworth of the International League champions, got three hits in six times at bat yesterday.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Today's "little world series" game between Rochester of the International League and Indianapolis of the American Association was called off because of rain and cold weather. The teams will meet Friday.

CARDS OPEN 3-GAME SERIES
AGAINST BOSTON
BRAVES

Braves Filed, Boston, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Heartened by word that the Giants had lost the first game to Chicago, the St. Louis Cardinals opened a three-game series against the Braves here this afternoon, scoring six runs in the first inning. The skies were overcast and the attendance small.

The line-ups:
BOSTON—Richbourg, rf; L. Smith 1f; Sisler, 1b; Hornsby, 2b; Mueller, 3b; Farrell, ss; Taylor, c; Brandt, p.
ST. LOUIS—Douthitt, cf; High, 3b; Bottomley, 1b; Hafez, lf; Holm, rf; Wilson, c; Maranville, ss; Haines, p.
Umpires—Hordan and Quigley.
Attendance—2,000.

The Cardinals got away to a six-run lead in the first inning, knocking Brandt from the box. Brandt was replaced by Cooney.

Bottomley's double drove in Douthitt and Frisch. Bottomley scored when Hafez singled to right. Holm singled to right, sending Hafez to third. Then Maranville was passed, filling the bases. Haines crashed out a double, scoring Hafez, Holm and Maranville.

Hornsby drove in a Boston run in the first with a long sacrifice fly, scoring Richbourg.

The Braves scored twice in the second when Bell, who singled, and Taylor, who walked, were driven in by Richbourg's single.

The Cards got two runs in the fifth when Bottomley walked and came home on Hafez's single. The latter scored when Taylor, Braves' catcher, missed the throw-in of Holm's single.

TO ORGANIZE TEN PIN LEAGUES AT MEETING FRIDAY

ENTRIES ALREADY IN FROM 16
TEAMS; HANDICAP, STRAIGHT-
AWAY LEAGUES PROPOSED

A SPECIAL BOWLING CONTEST
OVER WEEK-END; ROLLERS
CHALK UP BIG SCORES

There is to be a meeting of the bowlers of the city Friday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of organizing leagues for the coming season.

Entries are already in from sixteen teams and more will enter at the meeting.

It has been suggested that two leagues be formed, one a straight away and the other a handicap. The straight away league will be composed of bowlers who averaged 160 or better last season.

The handicap league will have bowlers of any and all averages. Scratch will probably be figured at 170 with low at 150, making a handicap limit of 20 pins to the man.

All bowlers, as well as captains and managers are urged to be at the alleys at 8 o'clock for this meeting. Two prizes are to be given for high single game and high three game total for the three day period, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Some of the boys have been warming up and showing mid-season form, Hagberg getting a 625 total in three games this week. With Van Essen, Kenney, Engbretson, Ziebell, Hulett, Christianson, Peters and others shooting some big 200 scores.

GIANTS IN A DOUBLE-HEADER WITH THE CUBS

McGRAW NAMES CARL HUBBELL,
TEXAS SOUTHPAW, TO START
FIRST GAME

ARTIE NEHF, FORMER GIANT
FOR CHICAGO

Polo Grounds, New York, Sept. 27.—(UP)—Artie Nehf, former New York favorite, came back to the Polo Grounds today to deal a death blow to the Giants' pennant hopes by pitching the Chicago Cubs to a 3 to 2 victory over John McGraw's fighting ball club in the first game of a double-header.

Nehf, rescued from the minor leagues last season by the Cubs, pitched a masterpiece. He allowed only six hits, and set the Giants down in order in five innings.

The defeat left the Giants one game behind the Cardinals with four games left to play.

Riggs Stephenson, the former Alabama football star, drove in the winning run, in the fourth inning. Hack Wilson tripled to right and came home on Stephenson's single over second.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
Polo Grounds, New York, Sept. 27.—John McGraw's fighting New York Giants staked their pennant chances in the National League race on today's double-header with the Chicago Cubs.

With one defeat likely to ruin the Giants, McGraw named Carl Hubbell, the raw-boned young Texas southpaw, to start the first game.

Artie Nehf, former Giant left-hander, opposed him. The weather was warm. About 25,000 fans were in the stands when the first game started.

The line-ups:
GIANTS—Welsh, cf; Reese, lf; Mann, rf; Lindstrom, 3b; Hogan, c; Jackson, ss; Terry, 1b; Cohen, 2b; Hubbell, p.
CHICAGO—English, ss; Maguire, 2b; Cuyler, rf; Wilson, cf; Stephenson, lf; Grimm, 1b; Hartnett, c; Beck, 3b; Nehf, p.
Umpires—Klem, Moran and McCormick.

The Giants took the lead in the second, after both teams went out in order in the first and Hubbell had set the Cubs down in their half.

The combination of a double by Lindstrom and a single by Hogan drove in a New York run, after which Nehf steadied and retired the side.

The Cubs forged ahead in their half of the third. Hartnett singled to center, Beck singled to left and Nehf walked, filling the bases. English roled to Jackson, who stepped on second, forcing Nehf. Hartnett scored on the force out and Beck came home when Terry let Jackson's throw on an attempted double play get away from him, the Cubs taking the lead, 2 to 1.

Hack Wilson's long triple to left center and Stephenson's single over second gave the Cubs another run in the fourth.

After one was down in the sixth, Wilson got a single over Lindstrom's head, but a lightning double play stopped the Cubs. Stephenson hit a slow roller to Jackson, who tossed to Cohen, forcing Wilson. Cohen completing the play to Terry.

Andy Cohen drove home a run for the Giants in the fifth. Jackson walked to start the inning. Terry flied to Stephenson, but Cohen bounced a double off the left field wall, sending Jackson home.

The Cubs halted what looked like a dangerous rally in the Giants' half of the sixth. Reese, first up, singled past English and went to third on Mann's double to right. Lindstrom fouled to Beck. Hogan hit a bouncer to Nehf and Reese was run down in a chase between third and home. Hartnett interfered with Reese, apparently holding him, and allowing Beck to touch him just as he started to dive for the plate.

The Giants gathered around Umpire Klem to protest, but he ruled Reese out. Jackson forced Hogan, Maguire to English.

The Cubs went out in order in their half of the seventh.

The Giants again got the first man on in the seventh, but a double play halted them. Terry's liner to Maguire went for a single when the Cubs' second baseman dropped the ball after a leap. Cohen flied to Cuyler, and Cummings, batting for Hubbell, hit into a double play, English to Maguire to Grimm.

The Lure of Gold

CHESTY JOIE HAS ANNOUNCED THAT HE IS INTERESTED IN AGAIN MEETING TH' VISITIN' ARAB

© 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.
Green, British rights reserved.

By QUIN HALL.

EVERY so often the sport fans in the United States are confronted with problems that demand some serious thinking.

Right now is one of those times and the problem concerns El Ouafi, the Riff from Morocco, who won the marathon at the Olympic games in Amsterdam.

Tex Rickard, the boxing king of New York, is as much responsible for the problem which confronts the fans as anyone. Instead of letting El Ouafi win the marathon and return to his duties as an army dispatch runner, or as a mechanic in the Renault factory, and become merely a vague memory, Tex had to get busy and as a consequence El Ouafi is going to be in our midst for some time. And come to think of it, he is also going to visit Mexico and Canada, and he may be just as big a problem in those neighboring countries as he is here.

The main problem, if you haven't already guessed, centers about the pronunciation of his name. We have our own guess about this, but we may be wrong and unless until Rickard sends out words of wisdom clarifying the situation it still looks like a man-sized problem.

Anyway, El Ouafi—and your guess is as good as the next one—has signed with Rickard for marathon appearances throughout the United States, Mexico and Canada. The contract guarantees the Riff marathoner $10,000 and that is probably more money than the underpaid Algerian Arab could amass in a lifetime of army dispatch running.

El Ouafi's spurt at the finish of the Olympic marathon is now a matter of history. He only succeeded in beating Plaza, from Chile, by a distance of about a hundred yards. This was the race in which our own Joie Ray finished fifth, back of Martellin, a Finn, and Yamada, a Jap.

Tex Rickard's anxiety to drag El Ouafi into some really big U. S. money is sure to turn some of our own distance runners into professionals. Already it is reported that Joie Ray is going to give up the amateur racket and go in for the coin.

His decision to turn pro brings to a close a record of eighteen years of competition as an amateur. This is not the first time that Chesty Joie has decided to become a professional as he turned in his amateur card some years ago with an announcement that he was going to give up amateur racing. After a period of suspension, however, he returned to the track and this year he took up marathon running for the first time and made a remarkably good showing despite his inexperience over the longer distance. His latest decision to turn professional was probably hurried along because he knew that Rickard was angling with El Ouafi for a United States engagement and Ray is anxious to again meet the squatly Arab.

It is not at all unlikely that Rickard will be able to sign up other marathoners on this side of the pond—fellows who are finally willing to listen to the clank of cash after long amateur careers.

Some years ago professional foot racing was one of the popular sports but right now it seems a gamble whether or not Rickard can ballyhoo it back into public favor and the big money. Sometimes it takes years to build a sport to a point where there is enough money to satisfy the participants and leave enough over to make it worth a promoter's time. C. C. Pyle tried it with tennis and achieved no astounding results, likewise the boys who are back of professional football have hammered away for several years with varying fortunes.

But Rickard's wizardry may put the marathoners over in a big way and it at least will furnish the basis of an argument over the pronunciation of El Ouafi.

tendance contest closed Sunday with the boys as victors. This entitles them to a banquet served by the girls. The girls have decided to make it a community dinner and invite all Oak Lawn residents to partake of the big feast to be served at Oak Lawn town hall Sunday, Sept. 30. Sunday school will commence at the usual hour 10 a. m., dinner will be served at 12 noon and the afternoon spent as the boys see fit as they have been appointed on the entertainment committee.

Next Sunday marks the close of the fifth month of Sunday school with a total attendance of 563 pupils or an average attendance of 23 pupils. This is a record to be proud of and very encouraging for the teachers. Parents should aim to keep up this splendid cooperation as long as weather and road conditions permit.

The Willing Oak Leaves will hold a vegetable and food sale on Saturday, October 6, at the vacant store on the corner of 7th and Front street. This will be a splendid opportunity for city folks to stock their basements with high quality vegetables for winter. Every kind of farm produce will be on display including eggs, dressed poultry, home canned goods and all kinds of home bakery. The money received from this sale will help pay for the third annual Christmas entertainment to be given by the club women of Oak Lawn township.

RENEE ADOREE and JOHN GILBERT in "THE COSSACKS" Stars of Big Parade Here in New Big Spectacular Film

A city-planning expert, as creator of the largest huge motion picture set, this is the startling innovation in screen construction carried out in the building of the sets for John Gilbert's new starring vehicle, "The Cossacks," now playing at the Lyceum theatre.

The new picture is a vivid romance of the Russian steppes, with Gilbert in the role of a young Cossack soldier during the warfare against the Turks on the border. Renee Adoree again plays the sweetheart of the hero and Ernest Torrence is seen as the Cossack chief.

ARGONNE DAY SEPTEMBER 29

Forget-Me-Nots Made by Disabled Veterans Offered for Sale

MRS. A. C. MRAS IN CHARGE

War Has Not Ended for Injured or Sick Veterans

That the Armistice did not end the war for hundreds of thousands of service men and that the Meuse-Argonne battle was not their last big fight, is evidenced by figures received from state headquarters of the Disabled American Veterans, by Mrs. A. C. Mraz, chairman of the local committee in charge of the Forget-Me-Not sales to be made on Saturday, September 29, Argonne Day. Mrs. Jack Alton is assistant chairman.

The statement is made that of the 4,800,000 Americans who were in military service during the World war, 747,594 have applied for compensation, and of this number 256,507 have been granted compensation benefits. In Minnesota 134,684 veterans served their country; 23,633 of these men have applied for compensation, and only 9,264 have been granted any compensation benefits; the remaining 14,369 believe themselves entitled to the same benefits but have not yet been able to disentangle the inevitable governmental red tape and to obtain the necessary legal proof as to the merit of their claims.

Last year approximately 4,700 veterans died as a result of their service incurred ailments. More veterans have died from wounds and diseases since the Armistice was signed than during the entire war period.

54,958 veterans are still fighting war horrors with mental and nervous ailments.

60,690 ex-service men are battling against the handicap of tuberculosis; about 7,000 of these tuberculosis are still in government hospitals. Altogether approximately 25,000 men are still being cared for in government institutions, and there is at all times a rapid turnover together with a large hospital waiting list of suffering men. In Minnesota alone 846 veterans are receiving treatment at the institutions at St. Cloud and Minneapolis.

The war has not ended for these men and for many others who are each day breaking down after a long fight against their decreased resistance resulting from exposure, injury and un-hygienic living conditions during their military service.

As indicative of the great need for expert assistance by trained Liaison Officers, the annual report of the D. A. V. Liaison Officer at Ft. Snelling, for the period from May 21, 1927 to May 20, 1928, shows that he interviewed 2,196 claimants, reviewed 2,416 individual case records, obtained 158 examinations and 79 hospitalizations previously denied by the Veterans Bureau, made 379 appearances before rating boards, secured increases in compensation on 261 cases and service connections on 74 cases, and secured original adjustment checks in the sum of $54,108.12. The monthly compensation payroll through increased compensation was increased to the extent of $5,418.99 for these men.

Valuable medical and legal precedents were established, which will subsequently favorably affect the claims of thousands of men throughout the country, by obtaining favorable action in several very difficult test cases. A conservative estimate of the value of his services to the disabled American veterans, as well as of additional money spent for treatment and compensation for disabled veterans, exceeds $500,000.00 for the year. The suggested changes to the law, regulations, and legal interpretations, which he has made during the last five years, and which have been enacted into the law, have affected the claims of thousands of men throughout the country and will continue to benefit these men throughout the rest of their lives.

In obtaining these legal changes the cooperation of the American Legion and of the Veterans of Foreign Wars has been of particular value to the Disabled American Veterans. Many other needed suggested changes initiated by this service officer are now being pushed by all three service organizations and will no doubt be adopted by congress.

"These statistics should be ample proof of the vital importance for continuing the liaison, legislative, and educational service of, for and by the Disabled American Veterans," commented Mrs. Mraz, local Forget-Me-Not day chairman. "I sincerely hope the people of this community will all decorate themselves with Forget-Me-Nots on Argonne day and thus help to continue the wonderful work which is being done on behalf of the disabled veterans. Silver for the silver button men will make this possible."

All Came From Dakotas Returning to Their Various Homes in the Midwest

With the coming of fall the city jail has become in a sense a lodging house for highway hikers and "knights" of the rail in the respect that a bunk is provided for the night but no charges made.

Last night eight men returning to their various homes throughout the state, Wisconsin, and Michigan, via Brainerd from the Dakotas, "registered" for lodging at the city police department. Some of the men had sufficient money to pay for lodging in city hotels where the rates are low but favored this method of lodging thus saving the cost that would be necessary for an hotel room. Others however were at the bottom of their finances and took the only available method of securing a heated room for the night without pay. Chief of Police Thomas J. Templeton stated that only on rare occasions were any meals provided.

ROTARIANS HEAR ATHLETIC HEADS

Superintendents W. C. Cobb, F. E. Lurton, E. Van Dusen, P. Atwood, E. O. Perkins Speak

DIRECTORS MEET MONDAY

Teachers Banquet Date Set for October 24, Hal Day Reports

It was announced at the last Rotary club meeting that the board of directors will meet next Monday night.

The aims and objects committee met last Thursday evening with Carl Zapffe and mapped out a program for the balance of the term.

Hal Day, chairman of the fellowship committee in charge of the teachers banquet said that function would be held on October 24.

The special committee on a duck dinner, William V. Turcotte, Ernest Butler, and R. E. Nichols was announced but failed to deliver with the result that no duck dinner will be scheduled.

Superintendent W. C. Cobb conducted a symposium relating to things connected with the eleventh district high school athletic association. Eight towns, said Mr. Cobb, are deeply interested in the athletic program. Football and basketball arouse the greatest interest and enthusiasm.

"A few things connected with the season, we hope to explain," said Mr. Cobb, "there are times when the people of any town in the circuit say 'why not do this or do that.' I doubt if there is any institution more highly organized than this athletic association. Membership is purely voluntary but nearly every high school in the district belongs. We have a code of laws, officers, and last year had a full time man in charge of direction and control of athletics in the state. The state regional district organization has complete control. In our district tournament we often have arguments over officials, tournament practice etc., and the speakers you will hear today will explain what steps have been taken to insure a successful tournament."

Superintendent F. E. Lurton of Aitkin spoke of the basketball tournament which has been held two or three times at Aitkin. The receipts for the nine game tournament at Aitkin amounted to $1300 and after all expenses were paid each school received a dividend check of $75.

"We are looking forward to the time when the district tournament will be held in Brainerd and we hope that in planning your new high school you will provide a gymnasium adequate to seat such an event. The closing game at Aitkin last year had an attendance of 1400. The attendance would have been larger had the armory been able to hold more. I anticipate the district tournament at Brainerd will bring an attendance of from 2,000 to 2,500 or over," said Mr. Lurton, "boys get a great deal of good out of physical training. The result of the draft showed the sad lack of physical fitness on the part of many men examined and much of this nature can be cured by correct physical exercise. High school athletics as now carried on develops good sportsmanship among the boys and your association is always endeavoring to maintain these sports on a high plan."

Superintendent Earl Van Dusen of Little Falls, mentioned visiting the Brainerd club four years ago at which time he was a Rotarian from Pratt, Kansas. He spoke of the imperative need of good sportsmanship on the sidelines. Games may be forfeited or points lost by home town sideline action. The school is responsible for its town crowd. One of the great needs on our district is a cultivation of sportsmanship on the sidelines," he said.

Superintendent Perry Atwood of Staples spoke of the necessity of rules and referred back to the old days when "everything" went. The level of sportsmanship has been raised with proper rules and their enforcement coupled with the cooperation of schools, principals, coaches, boys and the public.

Superintendent E. O. Perkins, of Crosby-Ironton high school spoke on the value of school spirit.

"The biggest thing in athletics," said Mr. Perkins, "is the training it provides for fitness in later years."

Ride this HUDSON

A personal experience will prove to you its performing leadership

We invite you as our guest to a personal demonstration of the Hudson Super-Six. We want you to learn how Hudson can do easily many things which you would not expect any other car to do at all. Scores of motorists, fresh from examining and riding in the latest cars offered by the industry, declare this Hudson the supreme performer of their experience.

Knowing that we are to prove all we say, we assure you that from the moment you take the wheel you will be conscious of a performance entirely distinctive from ordinary motoring.

In all Hudson does there is effortless ease. There is no motor labor—no sense at all of the mechanical. And whether in city driving or in high sustained speed over country roads its action and comfort are the very luxury of motion.

And though Hudson thus leads in its generous output of power, you can expect a fuel economy of around 15 to 18 miles per gallon! Thousands of demonstrations support this average.

New riders and new buyers are saying, "There is no performance like it in the world."

ARGONNE DAY SEPTEMBER 29

Forget-Me-Nots Made by Disabled Veterans Offered for Sale

MRS. A. C. MRAZ IN CHARGE

War Has Not Ended for Injured or Sick Veterans

That the Armistice did not end the war for hundreds of thousands ex-service men and that the Meuse-Argonne battle was not their last big fight, is evidenced by figures received from state headquarters of the Disabled American Veterans, by Mrs. A. C. Mraz, chairman of the local committee in charge of the Forget-Me-Not sales to be made on Saturday, September 29, Argonne Day. Mrs. Jack Aiton is assistant chairman.

The statement is made that of the 4,800,000 Americans who were in military service during the World war, 747,594 have applied for compensation, and of this number 256,507 have been granted compensation benefits. In Minnesota 134,684 veterans served their country; 23,633 of these men have applied for compensation, and only 9,264 have been granted any compensation benefits; the remaining 14,369 believe themselves entitled to the same benefits but have not yet been able to disentangle the inevitable governmental red tape and to obtain the necessary legal proof as to the merit of their claims.

Last year approximately 4,700 veterans died as a result of their service incurred ailments. More veterans have died from wounds and diseases since the Armistice was signed than during the entire war period.

54,958 veterans are still fighting war horrors with mental and nervous ailments.

60,690 ex-service men are battling against the handicap of tuberculosis; about 7,000 of these tuberculosis are still in government hospitals. Altogether approximately 25,000 men are still being cared for in government institutions, and there is at all times a rapid turnover together with a large hospital waiting list of suffering men. In Minnesota alone 846 veterans are receiving treatment at the institutions at St. Cloud and Minneapolis.

The war has not ended for these men and for many others who are each day breaking down after a long fight against their decreased resistance resulting from exposure, injury and un-hygienic living conditions during their military service.

As indicative of the great need for expert assistance by trained Liaison Officers, the annual report of the D. A. V. Liaison Officer at Ft. Snelling, for the period from May 21, 1927 to May 20, 1928, shows that he interviewed 2,196 claimants, reviewed 2,416 individual case records, obtained 158 examinations and 79 hospitalizations previously denied by the Veterans Bureau, made 379 appearances before rating boards, secured increases in compensation on 261 cases and service connections on 74 cases, and secured original adjustment checks in the sum of $54,108.12. The monthly compensation payroll through increased compensation was increased to the extent of $5,418.99 for these men.

Valuable medical and legal precedents were established, which will subsequently favorably affect the claims of thousands of men throughout the country, by obtaining favorable action in several very difficult test cases. A conservative estimate of the value of his services to the disabled American veterans, as well as of additional money spent for treatment and compensation for disabled veterans, exceeds $500,000.00 for the year. The suggested changes to the law, regulations, and legal interpretations, which he has made during the last five years, and which have been enacted into law, have affected the claims of thousands of men throughout the country and will continue to benefit these men throughout the rest of their lives.

In obtaining these legal changes the cooperation of the American Legion and of the Veterans of Foreign wars has been of particular value to the Disabled American Veterans. Many other needed suggested changes initiated by this service officer are now being pushed by all three service organizations and will no doubt be adopted by congress.

"These statistics should be ample proof of the vital importance for continuing the liaison, legislative, and educational service of, for and by the Disabled American Veterans," commented Mrs. Mraz, local Forget-Me-Not day chairman. "I sincerely hope the people of this community will all decorate themselves with Forget-Me-Nots on Argonne day and thus help to continue the wonderful work which is being done on behalf of the disabled veterans. Silver for the silver button men will make this possible."

CITY JAIL AS A LODGING HOUSE

"Travellers" With Depleted Funds Take Advantage of Warm Cells to Sleep In

8 "REGISTER" LAST NIGHT

All Came From Dakotas Returning to Their Various Homes in the Midwest

With the coming of fall the city jail has become in a sense a lodging house for highway hikers and "knights" of the rail in the respect that a bunk is provided for the night but no charges made.

Last night eight men returning to their various homes throughout the state, Wisconsin, and Michigan, via Brainerd from the Dakotas, "registered" for lodging at the city police department. Some of the men had sufficient money to pay for lodging in city hotels where the rates are low but favored this method of lodging thus saving the cost that would be necessary for an hotel room. Others however were at the bottom of their finances and took the only available method of securing a heated room for the night without pay. Chief of Police Thomas J. Templeton stated that only on rare occasions were any meals provided.

ROTARIANS HEAR ATHLETIC HEADS

Superintendents W. C. Cobb, F. E. Lurton, E. Van Dusen, P. Atwood, E. O. Perkins Speak

DIRECTORS MEET MONDAY

Teachers Banquet Date Set for October 24, Hal Day Reports

It was announced at the last Rotary club meeting that the board of directors will meet next Monday night.

The aims and objects committee met last Thursday evening with Carl Zapffe and mapped out a program for the balance of the term.

Hal Day, chairman of the fellowship committee in charge of the teachers banquet said that function would be held on October 24.

The special committee on a duck dinner, William V. Turcotte, Ernest Butler, and R. E. Nichols was announced but failed to deliver with the result that no duck dinner will be scheduled.

Superintendent W. C. Cobb conducted a symposium relating to things connected with the eleventh district high school athletic association. Eight towns, said Mr. Cobb, are deeply interested in the athletic program. Football and basketball arouse the greatest interest and enthusiasm.

"A few things connected with the season, we hope to explain," said Mr. Cobb, "there are times when the people of any town in the circuit say 'why not do this or do that.' I doubt if there is any institution more highly organized than this athletic association. Membership is purely voluntary but nearly every high school in the district belongs. We have a code of laws, officers, and last year had a full time man in charge of direction and control of athletics in the state. The state regional district organization has complete control. In our district tournament we often have arguments over officials, tournament practice, etc., and the speakers you will hear today will explain what steps have been taken to insure a successful tournament."

Superintendent F. E. Lurton of Aitkin spoke of the basketball tournament which has been held two or three times at Aitkin. The receipts for the nine game tournament at Aitkin amounted to $1300 and after all expenses were paid each school received a dividend check of $75.

"We are looking forward to the time when the district tournament will be held in Brainerd and we hope that in planning your new high school you will provide a gymnasium adequate to seat such an event. The closing game at Aitkin last year had an attendance of 1400. The attendance would have been larger had the armory been able to hold more. I anticipate the district tournament at Brainerd will bring an attendance of from 2,000 to 2,500 or over," said Mr. Lurton, "boys get a great deal of good out of physical training. The result of the draft showed the sad lack of physical fitness on the part of many men examined and much of this nature can be cured by correct physical exercise. High school athletics as now carried on develops good sportsmanship among the boys and your association is always endeavoring to maintain these sports on a high plane."

Superintendent Earl Van Dusen of Little Falls, mentioned visiting the Brainerd club four years ago at which time he was a Rotarian from Pratt, Kansas. He spoke of the imperative need of good sportsmanship on the sidelines. Games may be forfeited or points lost by home town sideline action. The school is responsible for its town crowd. One of the great needs on our district is a cultivation of sportsmanship on the sidelines," he said.

Superintendent Perry Atwood of Staples spoke of the necessity of rules and referred back to the old days when "everything" went. The level of sportsmanship has been raised with proper rules and their enforcement coupled with the cooperation of schools, principals, coaches, boys and the public.

Superintendent E. O. Perkins, of Crosby-Ironton high school spoke on the value of school spirit.

"The biggest thing in athletics," said Mr. Perkins, "is the training it provides for fitness in later years."

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgelow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, one of Broadway's favorite actors. His son, Frank, is an idler and, like his father, a spendthrift. Janet meets a young musician, Leonard Quigg, who attracts her. Janet's father drops dead after a brilliant performance, leaving her and her brother almost penniless. She obtains the position of confidential secretary to John Montague, theatrical impresario. At the same time she cements a friendship with a brilliant young doctor, David Churchill, who is secretly in love with Janet. Her employer offers to make her a star and settle a large sum of money on her—with provisions. She sneers at his "generosity" and makes him promise never to mention the matter again. Later she meets Leonard Quigg's uncle, Chester Quigg, the artist, and his young daughter, Alice. Again Montague reneges his offer and Janet resigns. David Churchill offers Janet a job as his secretary, and she accepts it. One evening they are having dinner together and he tells her he does not love his wife and is contemplating divorce. Finally he admits that he is in love with Janet.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIV.
JANET did not reply for a moment. She was thunderstruck at David's avowal. She sat there looking across the little table at him.

"Are you furious with me?" David asked.

"I'm not furious," Janet returned in a friendly voice. "If you were ill, David, I'd be sorry for you. I'm sorry for you now, because you are ill—mentally."

"Because I happen to love you? Because I want to get a divorce and marry you more than I've ever wanted anything before?"

"Just because of that?" Janet nodded. "I hadn't any idea of this." She paused, and then asked suddenly: "Did you give me that job because of this? The truth, David?"

"Half and half," he told her. "I did need someone like you very, very badly. Also, because I wanted to be near you, but I ask you to believe this—I never called on tonight. I didn't mean to tell you a thing, Janet, until I was free."

"In that case," Janet said, "I'm very glad you did tell me. David, I'm rather keen on this divorce question, and I have certain theories about it. I think people rush into it—just about as quickly as they rush into marriage. And it isn't so difficult. All you have to do is to fall in love."

"I've done that already," he said ruefully.

"Fall in love again with your wife," Janet went on. "Don't say it can't be done, because you don't know. You don't know anything about love—when it will happen, I mean. You chanced to meet me, and because I'm not as homely as a mud fence, and because you are in a state of mind where your wife irritates you, you think that you have fallen in love with me. In a week, in a month, in a year, it might be somebody else—and I don't see why you couldn't contrive to look at your wife from a different angle. At least don't rush into a divorce, and as for myself, that must stop. I don't care for you, and I never would."

"Anybody else?" he asked. "I know I shouldn't ask—but is there?"

"Nobody—and that ought to make you see more than ever that I could never care for you—in that way. And I wish you hadn't done it, David, if only from a selfish point of view. What's the matter with me?" Janet went on with a feeling of injustice and irritation. "As soon as I get a job, the man I work for must make a fool of himself. John Montague was a kind of emotion—want to get divorced, and to marry me. Can't a girl earn her living without subjecting herself to this sort of thing?"

"Not your sort of girl," David retorted grimly.

"I don't quite know what to do about you," Janet went on, thinking aloud. "I can't go on working for you."

"What a fool I was to tell you!" Janet replied. "No man can ever keep anything like that to himself. But I don't know quite what to do. I don't believe, if I want to help you, in the disappearing act."

"The disappearing act?" "Oh, a man thinks he's in love with a girl," Janet went on philosophically. "The girl doesn't care for him, but if she's a decent sort and tries to be human, she wants him to recover. She disappears altogether from the man's life, and what happens? Because he doesn't see her, he builds all sorts of absurd images about her so that she seems to be twenty times more desirable than she really is. The disappearance doesn't cure him in the least, but merely adds to the illusion he has created about her. And you're too fine a person, David, and your work is too important, to have your career all muddled up by a fool of a girl with a pretty face. I want to help you, because I like you, and because I think you're worth while, but I entreat you not to interpret this into meaning that I love you—because I don't, and I never will."

"Frank and to the point," he smiled unhappily. "Naturally, I'm not going to see you all the time, as that would be as foolish as disappearing altogether," she went on logically; "so you must find another secretary, David. I will stay with you for a week or so, until we get the ideal person. I will take care of that—and I think that's about all," she concluded.

"You won't continue to work for me?" he asked.

Janet shook her head.

"Then what will you do?" she dismissed it. "I am perfectly capable and I can always get a job. The point is you, David! Are you going to pull yourself together, and think a little bit more about the children and a little bit less about yourself?"

"You're being very wonderful," he said, a little bitterly. "You have behaved magnificently—but how easy it is for you! I happen to be the one who loves. It's easy enough for you to be fine, and firm and strong—because you don't give a hoot about me! I wonder how you would have behaved, Janet, if it had been fated for you to care for me?"

"I might have been a weakling, and argued that I had a right to you—ignoring the perfectly good claims of your wife and children," Janet retorted. "But it's hopeless, and if I haven't given you a square deal, Dr. Churchill, inform me of the fact!"

"Well, it sounds simple enough," David said as he rose, and looked for his coat. "All I have to do—is to forget that I love you."

"Which will be much easier than you anticipate," Janet remarked as she held out her hand.

"I suppose you have been very logical and sane, but you can't expect me to enthuse about it—yet," he smiled grimly.

"I think I've operated successfully—just as successfully as you did this afternoon," Janet protested. "Wake up, David, and get over it! Remember again, your career, and if you don't want to remember your wife—and I'll bet she has a whole lot on her side—remember your children. I'll be at the office as usual tomorrow, but I shall be late as I will drop in the Employment Agency to see about a secretary for you."

When he had gone, Janet cleared up the dinner dishes. She was glad that she had something to do. She did not want to worry about her future. Still, apart from David's sentimental attack, she had to face things.

Only that morning, she had received a letter from Frank. He seemed moody, and there was an illuminating remark in it, pointing out that the very rich never did anything for you. In other words, Frank had no job in sight. It was just after nine when Janet finished washing up. She was wondering what she would do with the evening, when the telephone rang.

"Is that you Janet Wilde?" a voice Janet loved came over the wire. "This is Alice Quigg, and things at the studio are far from satisfactory. I am not very happy, Janet, and if you could conveniently come and see us—why, and Janet's heart contracted as she heard Alice break down in tears at the other end of the wire.

BARLEY—Choice to

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgelow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, one of Broadway's favorite actors. His son, Frank, is an idler and, like his father, a spendthrift. Janet meets a young musician, Leonard Quigg, who attracts her. Janet's father drops dead after a brilliant performance, leaving her and her brother almost penniless. She obtains the position of confidential secretary to John Montague, theatrical impresario. At the same time she cements a friendship with a brilliant young doctor, David Churchill, who is secretly in love with Janet. Her employer offers to make her a star and settle a large sum of money on her—with provisions. She sneers at his "generosity" and makes him promise never to mention the matter again. Later she meets Leonard Quigg's uncle, Chester Quigg, the artist, and his young daughter, Alice. Again Montague renews his offer and Janet resigns. David Churchill offers Janet a job as his secretary, and she accepts it. One evening they are having dinner together and he tells her he does not love his wife and is contemplating divorce. Finally he admits that he is in love with Janet.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIV.
JANET did not reply for a moment. She was thunderstruck at David's avowal. She sat there looking across the little table at him.

"Are you furious with me?" David asked.

"I'm not furious," Janet returned in a friendly voice. "If you were ill, David, I'd be sorry for you. I'm sorry for you now, because you are ill—mentally."

"Because I happen to love you? Because I want to get a divorce and marry you more than I've ever wanted anything before?"

"Just because of that?" Janet nodded. "I hadn't any idea of this." She paused, and then asked suddenly: "Did you give me that job because of this? The truth, David?"

"Half and half," he told her. "I did need someone like you very, very badly. Also, because I wanted to be near you, but I ask you to believe this—I never calculated on tonight. I didn't mean to tell you a thing, Janet, until I was free."

"In that case," Janet said, "I'm very glad you did tell me. David, I'm rather keen on this divorce question, and I have certain theories about it. I think people rush into it—just about as quickly as they rush into marriage. And it isn't so difficult. All you have to do is to fall in love."

"I've done that already," he said ruefully.

"Fall in love again with your wife," Janet went on. "Don't say it can't be done, because you don't know. You don't know anything about love—when it will happen. I mean, you chanced to meet me, and because I'm not as homely as a mud fence, and because you are in a state of mind where your wife irritates you, you think that you have fallen in love with me. In a week, in a month, in a year, it might be somebody else—and I don't see why you couldn't contrive to look at your wife from a different angle. At least don't rush into a divorce, and as for myself, that must stop. I don't care for you, and I never would."

"Anybody else?" he asked. "I know I shouldn't ask—but is there?"

"Nobody—and that ought to make you see more than ever that I could never care for you—in that way. And I wish you hadn't done it, David, if only from a selfish point of view. What's the matter with me?" Janet went on with a feeling of injustice and irritation. "As soon as I get a job, the man I work for must make a fool of himself. John Montague was insulting—and you, with a different kind of emotion—want to get divorced, and to marry me. Can't a girl earn her living without subjecting herself to this sort of thing?"

"Not your sort of girl," David retorted grimly.

"I don't quite know what to do about you," Janet went on, thinking aloud. "I can't go on working for you."

"What a fool I was to tell you!" "Oh, I would have come out!" Janet replied. "No man can ever keep anything like that to himself. But I don't know quite what to do. I don't believe, if I want to help you, in the disappearing act."

"The disappearing act?" "Oh, a man thinks he's in love with a girl," Janet went on philosophically. "The girl doesn't care for him, but if she's a decent sort and tries to be human, she wants him to recover. She disappears altogether from the man's life, and what happens? Because he doesn't see her, he builds all sorts of absurd images about her so that she seems to be twenty times more desirable than she really is. The disappearance doesn't cure him in the least, but merely adds to the illusion he has created about her. And you're too fine a person, David, to have your career all messed up by a fool of a girl with a pretty face. I want to help you, because I like you, and because I think you're worth while, but I entreat you not to interpret this into meaning that I love you—because I don't, and I never will."

"Frank and to the point," he smiled unhappily.

"Naturally, I'm not going to see you all the time, as that would be as foolish as disappearing altogether," she went on logically; "so you must find another secretary. David, I will stay with you for a week or so, until we get the idea person. I will take care of that—and I think that's about all," she concluded.

"You won't continue to work for me?" he asked.

Janet shook her head.

"Then what will you do?"

"Don't worry about me," she dismissed it. "I am perfectly capable and I can always get a job. The point is this, David: Are you going to pull yourself together, and think a little bit more about the children and a little bit less about yourself?"

"You're being very wonderful," he said, a little bitterly. "You have behaved magnificently—but how easy it is for you! I happen to be the one who loves. It's easy enough for you to be fine, and firm and strong—because you don't give a hoot about me! I wonder how you would have behaved, Janet, if it had been fated for you to care for me?"

"I might have been a weakling, and argued that I had a right to you—ignoring the perfectly good claims of your wife and children," Janet retorted. But it's hopeless, and if I haven't given you a square deal, Dr. Churchill, inform me of the fact."

"Well, it sounds simple enough," David said as he rose, and looked for his coat. "All I have to do—is to forget that I love you."

"Which will be much easier than you anticipate," Janet remarked as she held out her hand.

"I suppose you have been very logical and sane, but you can't expect me to enthuse about it—yet," he smiled grimly.

"I think I've operated successfully—just as successfully as you did this afternoon," Janet protested. "Wake up, David, and get over it! Remember again, your career, and if you don't want to remember your wife—and I'll bet she has a whole lot on her side—remember your children. I'll be at the office as usual tomorrow, but I shall be late as I will drop in the Employment Agency to see about a secretary for you."

When he had gone, Janet cleared up the dinner dishes. She was glad that she had something to do. She did not want to worry about her future. Still, apart from David's sentimental attack, she had to face things.

Only that morning, she had received a letter from Frank. He seemed moody, and there was an illuminating remark in it, pointing out that the very rich never did anything for you. In other words, Frank had no job in sight.

It was just after nine when Janet finished washing up. She was wondering what she would do with the evening, when the telephone rang.

"Is that you Janet Wilde?" a voice Janet loved came over the wire. "This is Alice Quigg, and things at the studio are far from satisfactory. I am not very happy, Janet, and if you could conveniently come and see us—why," and Janet's heart contracted as she heard Alice break down in tears at the other end of the wire.
